The Spring Framework features its own model-view-controller (MVC) web application framework, which wasn't originally planned. The Spring developers decided to write their own Web framework as a reaction to what they perceived as the poor design of the (then) popular Jakarta Struts Web framework, as well as deficiencies in other available frameworks.

Spring Framework (Spring) is a powerful, lightweight, open-source framework for developing Java applications. It provides a comprehensive set of tools and libraries that simplify the development process. Spring Framework is built on top of the Java Platform, Standard Edition (JSE) and the Java Platform, Micro Edition (JME). It is designed to be easy to learn and use, and it provides a high level of abstraction that allows developers to focus on the business logic of their applications. Spring Framework is used by millions of developers around the world, and it is one of the most popular frameworks for developing Java applications. Spring Framework is a great choice for developers who want to build high-quality, maintainable Java applications. It provides a rich set of features and tools that make it easy to develop and deploy Java applications.
